

EARTH-HONORING FAITH

Sunday, June 19-Saturday, June 25

CLIMATE JUSTICE is NINTH in a series of a ten-year commitment on the part of Ghost Ranch to Earth-Honoring Faith: A Song of Songs. The goal of the series is to construct justice-centered, Earth-Honoring Christianities that promote interfaith efforts on common earth issues.

Climate Justice

G165631

All Inclusive,
Double Occupancy:
Private Bath: $1,385
Shared Bath: $1,145
Communal Bath: $1,055
Camping: $665 (no meals)

The swelling of the human imprint renders planetary social justice more urgent than ever. Race, class, gender, culture and place are all profoundly affected, and those who suffer most from climate change are those who contribute least to it. At the same time, climate injustice reaches farther than most social justice traditions address. The whole community of life, the primal elements of earth, air, fire and water, future generations, even evolutionary paths, are all impacted. How, then, do we intensify social justice while transitioning to creation justice? What crucial roles do religious communities play?

Left Column, from the top: Jennifer Harvey, Melanie Harris, Ray MaKeever. Right Column, from the top: Cynthia Moe-Lobeda, Jace Weaver, Linda Breitag

Dr. Jennifer Harvey, Professor of Religion, Drake University, is the author, most recently, of Dear White Christians: For Those Still Longing for Racial Reconciliation (Eerdmans, 2014).

Dr. Cynthia Moe-Lobeda, Professor of Christian Ethics at Pacific Lutheran Theological Seminary in Berkeley, has lectured or consulted in Africa, Asia, Europe, Latin America and many parts of North America in theology, ethics and matters of climate justice and environmental racism, public church and eco-feminism.

Dr. Melanie L. Harris, Professor of Religion and Ethics, teaches Christian social ethics, womanist ethics, African-American religious and eco-spirituality at Texas Christian University.

Dr. Jace Weaver is the Franklin Professor of Religion and Native American Studies and the Director of the Institute of Native American Studies at the University of Georgia.

Ray MaKeever and Linda Breitag are songwriters and performers of peace, justice and creation songs.

Includes an excursion on Friday, June 24 to Ohkay Owingeh Pueblo for its Feast Day celebration.

Senior High Initiative Leaders

Franciscan Sr. Joan Brown (Director of New Mexico Interfaith Power and Light) and Todd Wynward (wilderness educator and author of Rewilding the Way: Break Free to Follow an Untamed God) lead the youth experience.

Senior High Earth Initiative: Climate Justice

G16S632

All Inclusive,
Double Occupancy:
Communal Bath: $395

Youth care about our Earth and Faith, too! Youth who have an interest and passion in integrating care for the earth with their faith are encouraged to attend with an adult or another youth attending the Earth-Honoring Faith retreat so that together they can work to bring change to their families, faith communities and our world.

Morning sessions merge with the instructors of the Earth-Honoring Faith.

Time for hiking, swimming, service, cultural experiences, small group sessions, prayer services and being on the land is included.

For information, contact Sarah Stringer 505.685.1019 sarahs@GhostRanch.org